

Health care for people living with less common types of dementia

Your GP can help you to stay safe and healthy at home.

Ask about safety in your home and safe management of your medication.

Talk with your GP about changes in physical health, mood and behaviour.

Ask your GP to check all areas of your health including brain health, heart health, breathing, and mood.

For your GP to read

The Department of Developmental Disability Neuropsychiatry (3DN) at UNSW Sydney is researching the health and health service use of people living with less common types of dementia. Find out more about this research project from the link below.

<https://3dn.unsw.edu.au/project/using-big-data-understand-health-status-service-use-and-service-pathways-people-less-common>

Remember:

- Do not attribute all symptoms and changes in behaviour to dementia.
- Injuries and poisoning are common reasons for people living with dementia to be admitted to hospital. Talk with your patients about staying safe at home.
- Delirium is a common reason for people living with dementia to be admitted to hospital-based mental health services. Manage risk factors for delirium such as co-morbid illness, infection and electrolyte imbalance.

UNSW
SYDNEY

DEPARTMENT OF DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITY
NEUROPSYCHIATRY

Dementia Australia™
Research Foundation